"A rewarding life is achieved by pursuing opportunities with passion and overcoming obstacles with determination."

Robinanne Lavelle

Introduction

During a time of the COVID 19 pandemic, it has been highlighted the importance

- 🌿 to pause, breath and reflect,
- 💻 to connect with others,
- 🕒 keep a healthy routine,
- ❤️ be kind to ourselves and others and
- 📞 to reach out if you need help.

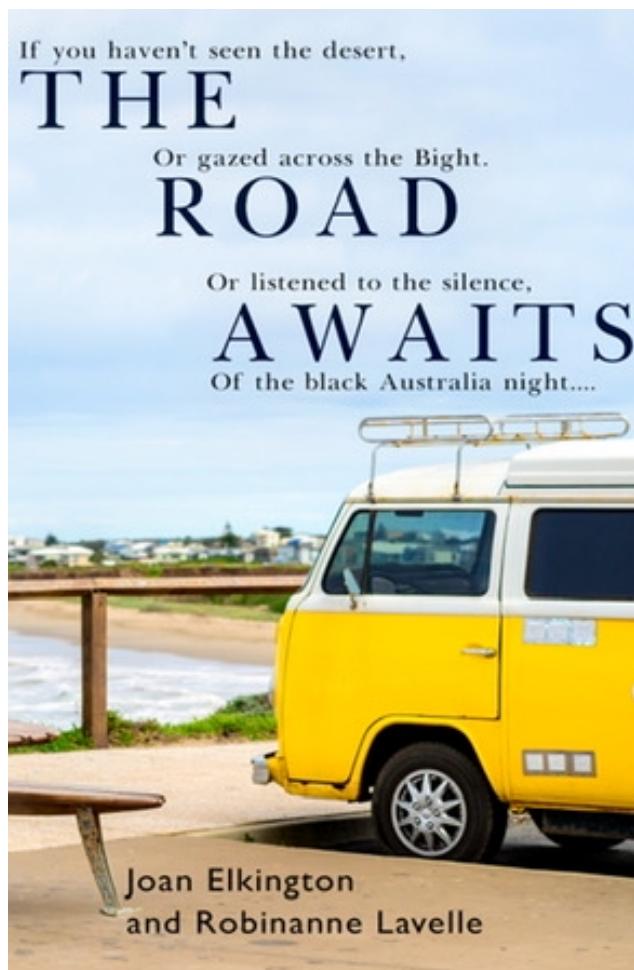

The Road Awaits is a story of unexpected sudden losses and is an inspirational story of survival and a new path that leads to happiness. This book is a great read during times of isolation caused by the pandemic. It is a story readers will be able to relate to as it is also about loss and fear of the unknown.

The book is also an uplifting story of a family's journey from this loss, making the best of things and finding a light at the end of the tunnel with happiness found in unexpected places. It is a journey to find true meaning and through this wisdom is developed.

This book of poems and vignettes takes the reader on a wonderful journey of discovery. The places visited are depicted so beautifully in the verses of each poem and the stunning photographs that accompany each of the pieces of work only enhance the reader ability to get away from the present and travel to amazing vistas.

The Road Awaits

Poetry extract

If you haven't seen the desert,
Or gazed across the Bight.
Or listened to the silence,
Of the black Australia night...

If you haven't surfed at Bondi,
If you haven't seen the snow.
Or wandered up to Queensland
Where the best Mangos grow...

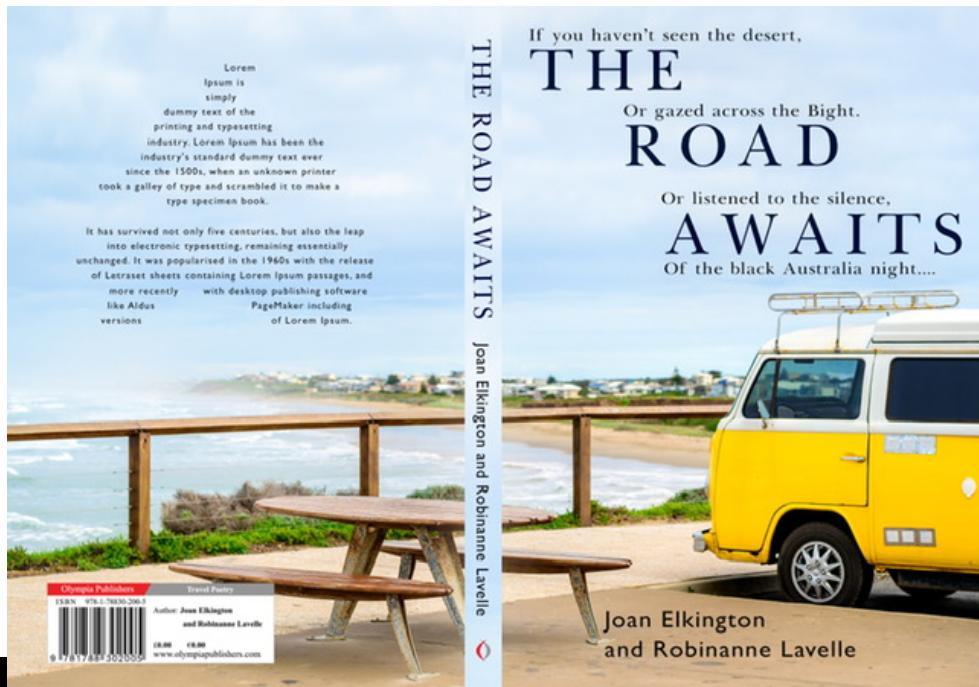

If you haven't helped to pick a crop,
If you've never turned a sod.
If you haven't learned to know and love,
The ways the Lawson trod...

If you've never paused to rest,
On some strip of fine, white, sand.
Where the grass grows coarse and stubby,
On some lonely, south headland.

If you haven't crossed from east to west
This Southland, girt by sea
You haven't seen the half of it,
And you haven't been with me!

The Road Awaits

This invigorating collection of poems highlights the beauty of the natural world which is often forgotten about in the new digital age. Robinanne Lavelle reminisces about the first road trip she took as a child which drove her strong admiration for nature. From the beaches of Bondi to the grapes of Barossa, and shipwrecks of the rugged west coast, Lavelle explores the small divinities which make Australia so magnificent whilst passing on apples of wisdom fed to her by her parents. With sharp turns and bumps, this road trip will cause a range of drastically different emotions but is sure to leave any reader changed and awoken. Whether a passionate environmentalist or an indifferent traveler, the road awaits...

Vignette extract

In the early 1960s my father sustained a back injury and was laid up in bed for over 6 months. Without working, and in those days with no health insurance, we lost our house. My mother had a nervous breakdown involving her losing the ability to speak for a year and worsening her epileptic fits. So, at the age of 9 years, I stayed home from school for the year to look after her. After that period, I often had my mother quote to me, "life can turn on a sixpence!" These were life altering events for my parents and when they were well enough, they decided to pack up our van to travel and work around Australia. We moved around the East Coast of Australia, then Victoria, moved on to South Australia, and finally travelled to the West Coast of Western Australia.

"The poetry decidedly prompts me to wish I was in Australia to see the sights depicted, to feel the air, and to revel in the majesties. This is a joyous read from start to finish."

"The Road Awaits by Joan Elkington and Robinanne Lavelle is a glorious step back in time - to a simpler period which wasn't so long ago - but so very different. The details are wry, honest and touching, and the language lyrical. It's a visceral reading experience with just the right amount of nostalgia. I recommend this book to anyone who wants to escape to a different time and place, and who is keen to connect with a very Australian experience."

"A beautiful unique blend of travel diary, Australian poetry and photography that transports you into the back seat of the family van on this epic journey across Australia. Joan and Robinanne's poetry provides a window into their minds, their thoughts of what they were witnessing along the journey, while the travel diary provides a reflection on a period of Australian history. This wonderful book takes the reader across dirt roads, through emerging cities and past the environmental marvels of Australia during the 1960s. Now is a perfect moment in time for a book like this—a reminder, that the wonders of the world, its natural beauty, are found when we lift our heads out of our screens, look up, and out the window on a family road trip."

What an astonishing thing a book is.
It's a flat object made from a tree
with flexible parts on which are imprinted lots of funny dark squiggles. But one glance at it and you're inside the mind of another person, maybe somebody dead for thousands of years. Across the millennia, an author is speaking clearly and silently inside your head, directly to you. Writing is perhaps the greatest of human inventions, binding together people who never knew each other, citizens of distant epochs. Books break the shackles of time.
A book is proof that humans are capable of working magic.
~ Carl Sagan
